An anecdote relative to the late Prof. Wilson, is just now circulating. When the suitor for the hand of Prof Wilson's daughter had gained the lady's approbation, he was of course referred to papa. Having stated his (probably) not unexpected case, the younger gentleman was directed to desire the lady to come to her father, and doubtless her obedience was prompt. Prof. Wilson 2.435 $1 00 $ 4 10 had before him for review some work, on the fly-leaf of 63 4 85 which was duly inscribed, "With the author's compliments." He tore this out, pinned it to his daughter's 850 2 25 26 47 dress, solemnly led her to the young lover, and went back 87 29 00 to his work.

My story opens in the classic freestinks of Bosting .-In the parlor of a aristocratic manshun on Bacon street sits a lovely young lady whose hair is covered ore with frosts of 17 summers. She has just sot down at the Piany & is singin the poplar peace called Smells of the Notion in which she tells how with Pensiv Thawrt she wondered by a C beet shore. The son is settin in its Lorizon and its gorjus lite pores in a golden meller fluid through the win and makes the bootiful young lady twice as bootiful as she was be4, which is onnecessary. She is magnifisuntly dressed up in a Berage basque Poplin trimmings, More Antique edges and 3 ply carpeting. Her dress contains 12 flounces, brilliantly ornamented with horn buttons, and her shoes are red morocco with gold spangled on to them. Presently she presses her buzzum and starts up in a excited manner. " Methinks." 5 pieces 36 inch BLACK GROS de ZURICH TAFFETA she whispers in clarion tones "I see a voice?" A noble youth, of 26 summers, scrapes the mud from his butes in the hall and enters. He is attired in a red shirt, and black trowsis which last air turned up over his butes, and his hat is bewitchingly cockt on one side of his classical hed. Insooth he was a noble child. Grease in its barmiest days near projuced a more gallenter herow than Moses. The young lady gazes upon him for a few periods, claps her hands together, stikes a position, and rollin her I's wildly like a expirim infantile cow, cries :

> thinks I shall swoon," she said, and pretty soon she swoondid. CHAP. II .- WAS MOSES OF NOBLE BIRTH? Moses was foreman of Ingine Kumpany Number 40. The 40's had jest bin avin a pleasant fite with the 50's on the day I introduce Moses to my readers. He had his arms full of troffees, to-wit: 4 scalps, 2 I's, 3 fingers, 7 ears, which he had chawed off, etc., etc. When

"No!" sez he, wildly ketching hold of himself, "you don't say so ?" "Indeed do I," she sed. "Your ded grand father's sperrit camest to me the other nite and sez he, 'Moses is a disguised Juke!"" "You mean Duke," sed Moses.

"Dost not the actors call it Juke?" she sed sternly. That settled the matter. "I have thought of this thing afore," said Moses, abery rich FRENCH and SCOTCH EMBROIDERIES, at stractedly. "If it is so, then thus it must be! 2 B or not 2 B-that air's the question? But no more of this now. Dry up! O life-life, your'e too many for me! He tore out some of his pretty yaller hair, stamped on the floor wildly, and was gone. CHAP. III .- THE PIRATE FOILED. Sixteen long and weary years has elapsed since the scenes narrowated in the larst chapter took place. A Model Crier.—An old paper turned up in a general clearing up, contains the following: In a beautiful town of North Carolina an old court crier, who had grown gray in the cause, and as deaf as a beetle, was in the habit of calling the names of witnesses (which he generally managed to get wrong) from the second-story window of the court house, in such a stentorian voice as to be heard with distinctness a square or more. On one occasion, in the course of a very serious and somewhat important suit, the presence of a witness named Arabella Hanks was needed. The crier, like a parrot, sat nodding on his perch, when he was aroused from his lumber by an order from the court to call the witness. Looking anxiously at the Judge, with his hand behind his ear, in order to catch the sound correctly, he said: "What, your honor?" " Call Arabella Hanks," said the Judge. Still in doubt, the poor crier arose from his seat, and said again, with a much puzzled look :

" What, your honor?" " Call Arabella Hanks, crier, and delay the business of the court no longer," said the Judge, much provoked. The old crier thereupon, with a countenance indicating doubts and desperation, proceeded to the window. and in his loudest voice, palled out: " Yaller Belly Shanks! Yaller Belly Shanks!-

It is needless to say that the seriousness of the court room was convulsively dispelled, and quiet was restored only to be again disturbed by the laughter caused by of passengers or employees upon a train, or of property the crier, who in answer to the court as to whether or or lives upon the track, depend. His eye or ear must not the witness answered, said : "No, your honor, and attend to the slightest unusual sound in the machinery, I don't believe there is such a person in the county, for or any indications of anything upon the track.
